In Arendt's critique of modernity the world created by homo faber is threatened with extinction by the aforementioned "rise of the social." The activity of labor and the consumption of its fruits, which have come to dominate the public sphere, cannot furnish a common world within which humans might pursue their higher ends.

Arendt, Hannah | Internet Encyclopedia of Philosophy

In his final philosophical treatise, The Passions of the Soul (French: Les Passions de l'âme), completed in 1649 and dedicated to Princess Elisabeth of Bohemia, René Descartes contributes to a long tradition of philosophical inquiry into the nature of "the passions". The passions were experiences "now commonly called emotions in the modern period" that had been a subject of debate among ...
